

These are examples of product lines. All of these products look like they belong together (they have similar colors, shapes, and features).

Is This a Product Line?

This is NOT an example of a product line. These products do not look like they belong together (they have different colors, shapes, and features)

Is This a Product Line?

Graphic designers create many different things! For example, they choose what pictures and words are used for logos, packages, books, and advertisements.

Information on Graphic Designers

Most graphic designers use a computer to create their designs.

Information on Graphic Designers